Mediation Philosophy

My mediation philosophy is grounded on the notion that every dispute or conflict can be orderly advanced or resolved in a structured fashion provided that the resolution of the dispute is desired by the parties. The role of the mediator is to assist the parties in obtaining the outcome (usually settlement) that they are seeking from the mediation. Each mediation is unique. My approach is customized for the parties, attorneys or representatives, subject matter and outcomes or results sought. A consideration of these factors will result in an evaluative, facilitative, transformative or mixed approach being employed. The expectation is that the parties will participate in the mediation in good faith, listen to the other side, respect the mediation process and advocate for an outcome that is acceptable to them.
